Thirty-first Sunday in Ordinary Time

Reflection on the Dead

We give them back to you, O Lord, who gave them to us, and, as you did not lose them in the giving so we do not lose them in return.

Not as the world gives do you give, O Lover of souls.

For what is yours is ours also, if we belong to you

Life is unending because love is undying, and the boundaries of this mortal life are but an horizon,

and an horizon is but the limit of our site.

Lift us up, strong Son of God, that we may see further!

Strengthen us in faith that we may see beyond the horizon!

And while you prepare a place for us, as you have promised, prepare us also for that happy place, that where you are we may be also, with those we have loved, forever. Father Bede Jarret, O.P.

The greatest commandment of all

Today we hear a very famous Gospel passage which we might dismiss easily because we feel we know it so well. Love God. Love your neighbour. It sounds simple, yet it can be so difficult. Loving God in our world today means being counter-cultural; often we are afraid to even admit that we are believers. Finding time for God can be impossible due to our hectic lifestyles; we are addicted to 'busy' and have become 'time poor'. Yet we can learn to see God in the everyday, right before us, in each task, in nature, in our friends and family. We might ask ourselves today, what prevents me from loving God, for making time for God in my life? For nourishing my relationship with God?

The love of neighbour which Jesus speaks of is a controversial love. It involves a love of people we don't know or like. It is a radical love of those that society wants to dismiss: love of the migrant, love of the homeless family, love of the drug addict, love of the prisoner, love of the earth, love of the climate refugee. Love God and Love Neighbour – it sounds so simple yet these are the toughest, most radical lines in the Gospel. It sounds like two commandments and yet they are one, interconnected and inseparable, for to love God we must love our neighbour. And by loving our neighbour we are loving God. Today let us all ask ourselves how we can live more fully this great commandment and be a shining example of Christ's love in the world. Jane Mellett
